

Reggae's Bob Marley Makes It On To 'Glee'

Late reggae legend Robert Nesta Marley made his 'debut' on the television show 'Glee,' this week.

Show producers incorporated Bob Marley's classic 'One Love/ People Get Ready,' into the show to drive home the theme of anti-bullying and pro-tolerance.

The song was originally released as 'One Love' by Bob Marley's band the Wailers on their 1965 album The Wailing Wailers. It later became 'One Love/ People Get Ready' on the 1977 record Exodus, when Marley added lines from the Impressions track 'People Get Ready' by Curtis Mayfield.

The song has also been dubbed 'The Song of the Millennium' by the BBC while a new version of the song has been sung by Bob's son Ziggy Marley, alongside the Gipsy Kings and the Boys' Choir of Harlem.
