Smirnoff will be giving away 500 tickets to the Smirnoff Nightlife Exchange Project and a Jamaican could be among the lucky few. The Smirnoff Original Nightlife Exchange Project takes place on November 12, and involves millions of people on six continents and across 50 countries. But as if getting passes to party was not enough, Smirnoff is making it easier to get free tickets to see Madonna, the top-selling female entertainer of all time. All one has to do is visit the Smirnoff Jamaica Facebook page and sign up to have a chance at winning tickets to the mass cultural experience. The more people you can get to sign up, the better your chances of winning tickets to see Madonna perform. The entry period runs from September 26 to November 7. Of course, entrants should be holders of a valid Jamaican passport and United States visa to be able to attend the concert.
