

Tessanne Chin advances on The Voice

The Voice premiered its battle rounds this week and Jamaican artiste Tessanne Chin once again proved that she is a force to be reckoned with.

Performing a rendition of Emeli Sande's Next To Me, both Chin and Donna Allen gave a chill-inducing performance, which had the judges confused as to which member of Team Adam Levine should advance. Judge Blake Shelton declared that Allen was the winner in his eyes, however, both Christina Aguilera and Cee-Lo disagreed, giving Tessanne the nod. With Adam left to declare the winner, both contestants looked visibly nervous as they awaited the verdict. In the end, Chin walked away as the victor of the battle, much to the delight of the audience. Meanwhile, fans took to social media to celebrate. One person tweeted "Congrats Tessanne fantastic performance and so humble." Tessanne's husband, Michael Cuffe, tweeted "@Words can't express the pride I feel right now for Tessanne not only an amazing talent, but an amazing human being." Tessanne also took to Twitter to express her gratitude. "Just wanna say a big thank you to everyone again for tuning in but most of all @DonnaAllenMusic you're amazing and I love you!."
