

Bounty Killer and Mavado make peace

"Unity is strength," is what producer Seanizzle had to say upon realising that Bounty Killer and his protégé Mavado have seemingly put the past behind them.

An elated Bounty Killer took to Instagram to announce that he and Mavado have made peace. The iconic dancehall artiste expressed happiness about the reunion. "Sorry for all who didn't want to see this folks but give God all the praises there ain't ntn he cannot fix much love goes out to @mavadogully for the surprise fathers night link it was a great moment at @hennessy_bounty_sundays last night," he wrote. "Father and son like it were (sic) in the beginning one step of unity is a mile of strength Tag A Friend If U Are Happy To See This As I Am Now," the post continued. And Bounty Killer is not the only one happy about the visit from Mavado, fans on social media are equally excited. "I loooooove this!!!!" one social media user commented. "So excited to see this @grunggaadzilla @mavadogully," another person wrote.